A trusted library, made easier to reach.

The website extends the physical library online. It should feel familiar and credible—not like a new business with a different promise.

THE SAME LIBRARY • A CLEARER DIGITAL EXPERIENCE

سهولة الاستخدام + تصميم مريح + ثقة

Ease of use • comfortable design • trust

DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

A calm, editorial bookshop that happens to be open online.

Books are the visual and structural anchor. Supplies, gifts and services support that experience without competing with it.

01

Books lead

Make the library's core specialty easy to discover, while keeping the wider education offer accessible.

02

Clear before clever

Help customers understand what an item is, whether it is available, what it costs and what to do next.

03

People stay close

Keep WhatsApp support visible for questions and judgment calls; let the website hold the authoritative record.

Specialized, modern, Azhar-rooted, student-focused.

These four qualities work together. The specialization is visible, but it does not make other students, parents or general-education customers feel out of place.

01

Specialized

Azhar books and educational materials are the center of gravity—not a boundary on who the library serves.

02

Modern

Contemporary hierarchy and simple navigation, without looking like a generic store template.

03

Azhar-rooted

Expressed through restraint, proportion and the green-and-gold relationship—not literal religious imagery.

04

Student-focused

Practical, readable and quick to use for students and parents, especially on a phone.

BRAND CHARACTER

Calm

The voice is a knowledgeable shopkeeper who respects the customer's time: clear, human and professional. Avoid unverified “best” or “number one” claims.

Green anchors the experience. Gold stays restrained.

Warm ivory creates a comfortable reading surface; charcoal keeps long-form and product information clear.

Comfortable reading in Arabic—and clear mixed-language details.

Arabic is the primary reading experience. English, ISBNs and other Latin details fit alongside it without disrupting direction or hierarchy.

Labels & status

Short, specific wording

Arabic paragraphs stay right-aligned and are never justified. Numbers, phone details and ISBNs keep a consistent reading direction. The final logo typeface and price numeral style remain to be confirmed.

Let the books provide the visual evidence.

The interface stays quiet so covers, titles, prices and availability can do their job. Islamic character comes from measured geometry and color—not repeated ornament.

Restrained geometry

Thin lines and partial arcs; low contrast and away from dense text.

Full covers, never cropped

Real product imagery leads; missing imagery uses a calm, honest placeholder.

Surface before shadow

Whitespace and a light border separate objects; shadows are rare.

One outline icon language

Icons support a label; status never depends on color or symbol alone.

Supplied brand reference board · used as visual context, not as a source for final logo artwork or approved color values.

Shopping and services solve different needs.

Fixed-price products move through the cart. Services begin with a request and receive a quotation after review. Keeping these paths distinct avoids false pricing and confusing checkout.

PRODUCT JOURNEY

Answer the visitor's first questions quickly.

Who is this library? What can I find? Are there services? Where should I start? A focused homepage helps a new visitor move into the right path without overfilling the page.

01 • Header

Shop first • Search • Account • Cart • WhatsApp

02 • Hero

Short, honest proposition + one clear Shop action

03 • Books-first discovery

Featured books and entry points by track or stage

04 • Stable categories

Books • School / Study Products • Other Products

05 • Seasonal module

Temporary emphasis; permanent structure stays

06 • Services preview

07 • Practical trust + footer

Availability • pickup • location • hours • contact

THE FIRST FEW SECONDS

A Qena library with deep Azhar expertise—and more for students.

Copy stays factual and welcoming. No unverified “best” claim or unsupported promise.

EDITORIAL RULE

If nothing seasonal is active, the page still feels complete.

Books and stable categories remain the foundation; temporary content never replaces them.

Make the purchase decision clear on the card.

A customer should not need to message the library just to learn the basics. Product cards make the useful facts visible before the detail page.

- Cover: show the full real cover; contain it, don't crop or tint it.
- Identity: title first; show author, grade or publisher only when available.
- Price: make the current price easy to find; keep any discount clear.
- Availability: label in-stock, out-of-stock or pre-order with words, not color alone.
- Next action: add to cart, pre-order, or explain why no purchase action is available.

On the product page, show price, availability, variants and a support action in the first view. Keep delivery estimates distinct from final costs; do not add review ratings or invented related-product rules.

Services are requests—not products in a cart.

The final price depends on the request. The interface explains that clearly, records what was requested, and gives the customer a clear decision when the library sends a quotation.

No fixed service prices until defined

01

Choose service

KEEP EXPECTATIONS HONEST

No in-site service-file upload, invented turnaround time or fixed service price. File exchange can happen through the supported human contact path.

Built for the phone in a student's hand.

Many customers arrive through social and messaging channels on phones. Search, product decisions, services and checkout should stay reachable and readable in a one-handed flow.

Reachable navigation

Menu, search and cart stay easy to find; WhatsApp never blocks the main action.

Readable discovery

One or two product columns only when titles, prices and actions remain clear.

Comfortable controls

Large touch targets and forms with visible labels and helpful errors.

Clear checkout

Keep the current total and next step visible; show cost changes instead of hiding them.

Distinct service flow

Requests and quotations remain separate from product shopping.

RTL from the start

Design the reading order and controls for Arabic first, then verify English.

Clarity is more credible than a claim.

Trust comes from accurate information, visible next steps and honest process states—not badges, countdowns or unsupported reassurance.

01Real product facts

Make item identity, current price and availability clear before purchase.

02Honest order states

Say “Pending Review” while a decision or payment proof is still being checked.

03Costs made visible

Show the shipping estimate and any final cost as distinct steps; pickup is free.

04Human contact

Keep WhatsApp available for help, without implying a message places or changes an order.

05Physical presence

Show confirmed location, business hours and approved contact information.

06Policy clarity

Publish payment, delivery and returns information only when the rules are confirmed.

The library’s location in Qena and founding year (2023) are confirmed. The exact landmark wording and final phone numbers remain open, so they should not be guessed in customer-facing copy.

Seasonal emphasis, without a seasonal store.

Temporary modules help customers find what matters now. The core navigation and full library remain in place all year.

JULY

Summaries

Bring relevant summaries forward in featured discovery.

AUGUST

Applications & transfers

Highlight the relevant service path while keeping it distinct from shopping.

SEPTEMBER

School supplies

Give seasonal school needs a clear homepage entry.

ALL YEAR

Books remain central

Stable categories and the broader catalog stay discoverable.

Stable structure, flexible merchandising

Same identity • same components • real prices and conditions only

What can change

A campaign banner, featured shelf or service preview can shift with the season.

What stays steady

The books-first shop, core categories, navigation and calm visual identity do not move.

Ten principles for a consistent experience.

These guide every screen—from catalog discovery to order status and student-service requests.

01 Answer the useful questions first

Identity, availability, price, next action and human support.

03 Keep Islamic character calm

Use proportion and geometry, not literal or heavy ornament.

05 Keep services distinct

Request, review and quotation—not cart and fixed price.

07 Design Arabic and RTL first

Then verify English and mixed-language details.

09 Design every state

Loading, empty, unavailable, pending, rejected and error.

02 Books lead

Supplies, gifts and services support the core offer.

04 Build trust through transparency

Show real status, price, availability and cost changes.

06 Keep human support visible

WhatsApp supports the process; the website remains authoritative.

08 Treat mobile as primary

Make each core task reachable and comfortable on a phone.

10 Let seasons be a layer

Campaigns change emphasis; the year-round library stays whole.

Visual references provided with the project.

These boards inform the green-and-gold editorial direction and component tone. They are shown as references—not as verified live screens, approved product photography or a standalone logo asset.

The original standalone logo was not included. This document preserves the existing identity in principle and does not redraw, isolate or recolor the logo from a composite reference image.

Resolve the facts that shape customer-facing copy.

The direction is clear; several business details should stay configurable until the owner confirms them.

Identity assets

Standalone approved logo, exact colors and final typeface.

Location & contact

Exact landmark wording and final phone / WhatsApp numbers.

Payment methods

Final customer-facing list; source documents differ.

Delivery & policies

Shipping estimate rules, final-cost confirmation, delivery times and returns wording.

Service operations

Required fields, service-specific pricing and turnaround expectations.

Content & imagery

Real product / library photography and ongoing description ownership.

Arabic conventions

Price/date numeral style and customer-facing order-stage wording.

Final product decisions

Homepage copy, category structure and any approved sorting options.

Scope note

This PDF presents a design direction based on the supplied `DESIGN.md` and project references. The application repository was not available in this workspace, so this is not an audit of existing screens, code or components. The proposed palette and fonts require review against the approved standalone logo.

What should the final website feel like?

The same trusted library— clearer, calmer and easier to use online.

A place where books lead, student services have a clear path of their own, prices and availability are easy to understand, and human help is never far away. Modern in its organization, rooted in its identity, and honest at every step.
